

"Might Be Good..."

Issue #45

May 27, 2005

Ewan Gibbs: From the Empire State Building

Lora Reynolds Gallery

On view through June 25, 2005

Lora Reynolds Gallery's current show, Ewan Gibbs: From the Empire State Building is a knockout. The first room features eight small scale drawings on graph paper (each 11 5/8 x 8 1/4 inches), the sources for which are photographs taken by Gibbs from the observation deck of the Empire State Building in New York City. Meticulously rendered, each work is comprised of thousands of single marks -- one mark per square of graph paper. All titled From the Empire State Building, these works draw the viewer into Gibbs' world through his meticulous process and then beckons a second look as we engage in his larger atmospheric vision. Ewan Gibbs lives and works in London and has been featured in numerous exhibitions throughout Europe and the United States. Ewan Gibbs: From the Empire State Building will remain on view through June 25.