Xavier Schipani, a Washington, D.C., native and graduate of the Maryland Institute College of Art, now lives and paints in East Austin, where his work often explores sexuality, gender identity, and pop culture. His smart use of graphics and a fearless approach to using color has attracted fans like the Foo Fighters. He created the cover art for the band's EP, Saint Cecilia, which was recorded over a long weekend at the South Austin hotel for which it's named.
